1805 – Beacon Hill ropewalks sold to residential developers
1806 – Fires damage ropewalks on Boston Common
1807 – Allen Street ropewalks sold to residential developers
1812 – War of 1812 – Massachusetts Federalists do not support war

1814 – Hales Map of Boston

By 1814, the Hales map shows that the ropewalks of the West End and Beacon Hill have given way to the residential development of that portion of Boston. The Charles River ropewalks seem well established.
